Internship / Alternance: Competitive intelligence & Funding Manager (M/F)

-Lyon, France-

You will integrate an organization driven by innovation at the core of a biotech company business model. You interact within the Business Development & Strategy team whose challenge is to secure funding in the infectious disease area.

Your tasks

- Competitive intelligence: you will take charge of key aspects of our competitive mapping using dedicated tools. You will summarize your analysis of the competitive environment and key findings in a strategic note about the following topics: competitive environment, epidemiology, vaccine efficacy, vaccine technologies, biotech market, etc.
- Non-dilutive financing (public grants and subsidies):
 - your main task is to support the scoping, preparation and redaction of project proposals.
 - you will also support the identification of relevant opportunities/calls for proposals (public investment banks, state agencies for pandemic preparedness, NGOs) at national and international level (France, Europe, US, Asia...).
 - in the context of our R&D projects that are already supported by on-going fundings, you will produce progress reports.
- Partnership opportunities/Business Development: you will analyze Big Pharma's development strategies and provide dataroom/Q&A support when appropriate.

Your background & profile

A scientific background is strongly preferred (Pharmacist, Engineer, Master 2), and a double degree in Business School. Entrepreneurial spirit preferred. You are eager to work in an innovative and rapidly growing company. A good level of English is required.

You will evolve in a stimulating environment and take on a wide variety of challenges.

Skills:

- Passionate, Rigorous, and Curious: You have a keen sense of analysis and synthesis.
- Time Management and Organization: Strong skills in managing time and staying organized.
- Proactive: You are proactive and able to propose new ideas for the projects you handle.
- Team Player: You enjoy working in a team and thrive in a great work environment.
